you have a party with you at all times. Together, you can enter dungeons or convene at villages or events. □You form a party with other players even in the field. For example, if you are playing on a deserted island, you can play with your party. □You can leave the party during battle and return later. With the Party Formation system, you can build a Party that suits your play style. □You are not alone even when you leave the Party. You can see the members of your Party and meet the party leader in the party member list. 2. [Gameplay] TOWN SYSTEM □The Town System allows you to meet, talk with, hire, and befriend NPCs in your town. By building up friendship, the townspeople support you in your quests. □The townspeople have their own lives, and town events happen throughout the town.
They have their own missions such as keeping an eye on the stables or fighting monsters in the training ground.
Returning to towns requires time, but you can swiftly travel to a town you have already explored. □Towns can be set up anywhere in the Lands Between and can be expanded. These towns are also great for organizing your weapons and armor. FIELD SYSTEM □Fields are vast, and difficult dungeons full of traps await those who break in. □You can enter dungeons only by clearing a Trial. Each time a Trial is cleared, you will receive EXP, gather the items and items that will help you, and take a picture of yourself. □You can gather items from chests, gold and silver coins, and by looting. (You can actually loot during battle.) □You can retrieve items after defeating monsters or exploring a dungeon.
You can set the difficulty of each Trial by selecting one of three levels. FIELDS □In fields, you can use items, including potions, to clear Trial encounters and continue your quest. □Every time you complete a Trial, the next Trial's EXE level increases. □You can clear Trials with your party using a Character Card or summoning a Servant. □ bff6bb2d33
